So what exactly is the recipe to make you successful?

While we'd all love to throw in a cup of this or a dash of that, it's not that straightforward. However, there are 10 qualities that all successful people have. Find the perfect mix of all ten ingredients below, combine, and enjoy the fruits of your labor.

Resilience

Let's face it: there will always be times of uncertainty in our lives. The difference is how you handle them. You can go ahead and make decisions to make sure you have an illusion of security, or be willing to dive into the unknown. Being effective in difficult circumstances and setbacks is what will enact change and propel you forward.

Honesty

Being honest with yourself will allow you to really dig deep and see what it takes to achieve your goals. Are you scared of moving forward with your dream? Acknowledge it. You'd be amazed at how fast forward you will move towards your goal after you do so.

Don't forget, honesty goes a long way when it comes to others too. Need help? Ask. Want a job? Be honest in your resume. Your reputation will thank you.

Time Management

Being productive with your time is essential in working towards your goals, professionally and personally. After all, all work and no play makes a Jack a stressed out and dull boy, right?

Patience

You might not see immediate results when working towards something long term. You need to trust and see things through, even though there doesn't seem to be any sort of change happening. People who don't succeed don't have the patience to wait and see what happens months or even years from now. If everything came so easily and quickly, then why isn't everyone successful?

Courage

Behind every successful person exist stories upon stories of failure. While having your best plans blow up in your face is scary, it's all part of the learning process. If all the most successful people in the world ran away every time they got scared, where do you think they would be today?

Networking

Successful people never venture out on their own. In fact, they would probably tell you that it's impossible. Having people who can mentor you, keep you accountable, and talk through your concerns will make or break you. Go out there and start meeting people. Now.

Passion

What do you truly enjoy in life? Successful people inject passion into what they do. Let's say you want to start a photography business, but hate having to market yourself. A successful person would work hard at marketing because they know that without clients, they cannot pursue their passion of having a photography business. Try to think about an aspect of your life that you want to change. How can you inject your passion into it?

Vision

Do you have a clear idea of what you want and how to get it? Successful people do. They take the time to clearly outline what they want, and create a strategy to help with that vision. They also frequently refer to their vision and to their values and strategy in order to succeed in whatever they set their minds to.

Adaptability

Having a plan is definitely important on your road to success. But what if things change? How easily will you move from one set of circumstance to the next? Highly successful people are able to change with every turn and adapt to situations that arise. Will you be one of those people?

Creating Value For Others

Why would anyone pay attention to you if you don't have something to offer? Successful people know that they need to build up their skill set, whether it's career related, or even something as simple as helping a friend out. Figure out what you have to offer to the world, and just do it!
